'Hill's proposals were first put into effect ... in Australia when in 1838 James Raymond, the Postmaster General at Sydney, New South Wales, persuaded the government to authorise the issues of stamped letter sheets, wrappers and envelopes bearing the seal of the colony embossed in relief - predating the Mulready letter sheets and envelopes by nearly 2 years. ... Members of the public could supply their own paper for stamping. ... [This was] the first stamping-to-order facility for postal paper, a service which was also contained in Hill's proposals, but not made available in the UK until October 1855.' Dr. Alan K. Rare and most attractive. J.P. Gough states that this is the only example of this issue used thus that he has seen in collecting postage dues over 35 years. While Trinidad holds the position as the first member of the British Empire to issue postage due stamps, the colony of Tasmania was the first to have used definitives for postage due, predating Trinidad's dues. All such usages to collect postage due before 1900 are rare. £800-£1,000

Peter Brown, 2nd Marquis of Sligo, was a close friend of Lord Byron and later notable for his work against slavery in Jamaica. However on his visit to Malta his lordship decided to hire a vessel, the "Pylades" (an "unmanageable brig" according to Byron who accompanied him and was famously to swim the Hellespont on May 3rd)) and decided to "borrow" two conscripted sailors to add to its crew. He was later convicted in 1812 of enticing British Seamen to desert, fined £5,000 and imprisoned for four months in Newgate. "he has all the indecision of your humble servant, without the relish for the ridiculous which makes my life supportable." (letter from Byron at Athens to John Hobhouse, Aug. 23 1810) Photo on page 92. £200-£250
